Medical College: The sewage water including that from the toilets from the Government Medical College, Thrissur is flowing into the streets and when it rains, such sewage get mixed with the rainwater and reaches to nearby residential house. It is alleged that the non-maintenance of Sewage Treatment Plant at Government Medical College, Thrissur is the main reason. The leakage is in the pipe which carries liquid waste from different wards of the hospital to the Sewage Treatment Plant. Sewage Treatment Plant was commissioned after spending nearly 14 crores 6 years ago which was not taken over by the medical college quite unfortunately. The decision to take over the plant after conducting an expert study on the functioning, 3 years ago is still in the papers.
